

ABSTRACT

The present invention discloses a method for improving channel transmission efficiency in a wireless network. In the course of data transmission, a length of a data frame split from a Media Access Control (MAC) layer service data packet is 5 changed in real-time according to a channel state of the wireless network. The inventive method for improving channel transmission efficiency in a wireless network can effectively improve the efficiency of wireless channel data transmissions and can be easily implemented.

10